

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What are the qualities needed to be a good manager?

Learning Outcome

Understand actions, events, and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you think makes someone a good manager or leader?
- What kind of skills and characteristics should they possess?

Can Do Statements

- I can express claiming, mentioning, requesting, or pointing out an idea, thing, or issue in the workplace environment.
- I can express duty and advice related to work and job issues.
- I can talk about how to become a good leader.

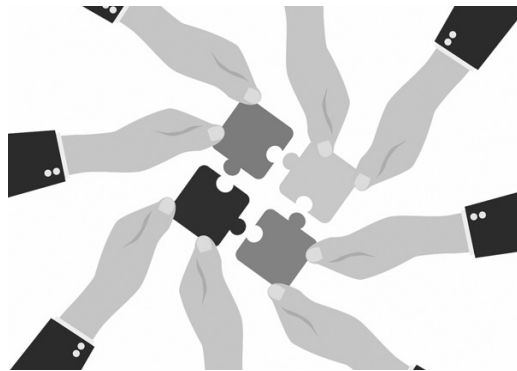

Let's Explore!

What are the vital skills a manager should possess?

* If something is "vital", it is very important or necessary for something to succeed.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Qualities of a Good Manager

There are six skills that are essential for anyone who manages people or projects. Five of these six skills are people skills. People skills involve being able to communicate effectively in a friendly way.

As a manager, your communication style ought to be consistent, clear and tactful. You should use the appropriate words to communicate your ideas, requests and concerns and encourage the same in your staff. It is said that effective communication skills are at the root of excellent management.

Assertiveness is claimed to be an important key skill for managers. You ought to be able to communicate your ideas in a confident way without hesitating. It's possible to be assertive while also respecting the other person's viewpoint.

It is assumed that the natural ability to connect with others and build trust is a vital management skill. Excellent managers should be open, friendly, and easy-going with others, especially with members of their team. They ought to be able to interact with others in an informal but professional manner. Good managers should take an interest in their employees and show that they are invested in their growth and success.

A relationship built on trust is vital. A manager should be explicit with expectations and plans and follow through with actions. A good manager is known to individually consider each employee and try to match their talents and interests with their tasks and compensation.

Being a good manager is a bit like putting together a puzzle. It is assumed that employees, tasks and goals are the puzzle pieces. Putting the puzzle together efficiently involves distributing tasks, coming up with strategies, overseeing the execution of it all, and providing constructive feedback. It is understood that being a good manager and incorporating all six of the skills requires a lot of hard work and dedication.

Let's Practice!

Words that help managers.

Instructions: Find the words in the word search.

Words

1. the root of
2. key skill
3. tactful
4. to hesitate
5. viewpoint
6. to follow through
7. compensation
8. to distribute

L	N	O	O	F	S	E	H	L	Y	W	B	T	O	F	A	N	B	A
O	W	A	J	M	B	L	N	D	F	V	L	A	S	L	X	L	K	Q
F	I	T	C	R	P	I	M	I	A	D	S	W	S	N	B	G	N	V
T	I	H	W	U	K	U	J	V	Z	L	E	L	W	V	F	O	H	C
J	Y	E	S	D	E	C	B	T	C	E	N	U	Q	I	Y	H	E	P
Z	L	R	E	Q	Y	I	A	A	K	S	O	A	P	E	J	U	S	V
P	A	O	U	D	S	M	V	C	Y	A	S	X	X	W	U	C	I	K
Q	P	O	Q	D	K	A	E	T	I	A	C	X	K	P	G	G	T	T
L	R	T	K	B	I	R	T	F	B	F	P	Z	M	O	H	C	A	P
O	H	O	I	I	L	E	E	U	G	G	Q	S	P	I	S	X	T	U
K	F	F	L	Z	L	B	O	L	C	K	S	F	L	N	H	M	E	Z
L	C	O	M	P	E	N	S	A	T	I	O	N	O	T	K	I	E	I
Q	A	L	F	O	L	S	K	H	E	K	E	D	U	T	I	Q	G	G
C	W	Z	L	C	W	V	G	H	H	J	Z	A	Z	R	B	U	L	B
U	P	R	V	O	I	D	I	S	T	R	I	B	U	T	E	J	L	W
K	H	X	R	T	Q	J	X	W	M	A	U	L	F	X	N	Y	O	J
G	L	C	Z	F	O	L	L	O	W	T	H	R	O	U	G	H	V	M
I	M	D	D	U	A	V	C	B	F	I	Q	X	E	Q	W	G	N	G
P	G	N	Q	E	V	Y	G	H	D	S	S	V	V	V	Z	M	Z	V

Let's Practice!

Elements that make a good manager.

Instructions: Match the sentences in Column A with the sentences in Column B.

COLUMN A

1. It is said that effective communication skills
2. Assertiveness is claimed to be
3. A good manager is known to
4. It is assumed that
5. It is understood that being a good manager

COLUMN B

- a. are at the root of excellent management.
- b. employees, tasks, data and goals are the puzzle pieces.
- c. and incorporating all six of the skills requires a lot of hard work and dedication.
- d. individually consider each employee.
- e. an important key skill for managers.

Extension Activity

Would you be a good manager?

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- In pairs, brainstorm a person who you both know that is a manager.
- It could be a boss, teacher, or coach.
- Using the six skills that make a good manager, for each category (communication style, assertiveness) give a score between 1 and 4. (1 being the lowest and 4 being the highest).
- Share your ranking with another group and explain your reasoning.
- Then, using the six skills that make a good manager, assess whether or not you would be a good manager using the same process as before.
- Write an analysis of your strengths and your weaknesses.
- Share with a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I collaborate with a partner.

☐ ☐

I analyze an individual example and based on a scale assess their effectiveness as a manager.

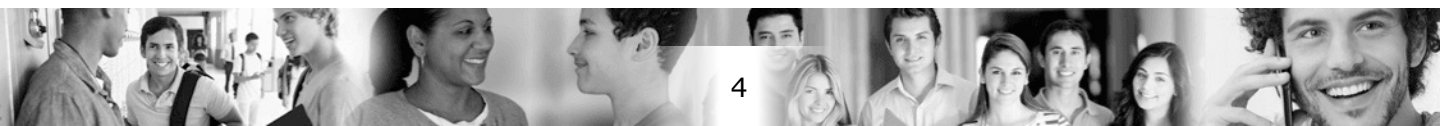

☐ ☐

I self-reflect and analyze my own strengths and weaknesses as a possible manager.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- the root of (expression): the main part of something, from which other things have developed e.g. It is said that effective communication skills are at the root of excellent management.
- key skill (noun): an ability to do something that is necessary e.g. Assertiveness is claimed to be an important key skill for managers.
- tactful (adjective): not likely to upset or embarrass other people e.g. As a manager, your communication style ought to be consistent, clear and tactful.
- execution (noun): a process in which you do something that has been carefully planned e.g. Managers need to oversee the execution of it all and provide constructive feedback.
- viewpoint (noun): a particular way of thinking about a subject e.g. It's possible to be assertive while also respecting the other person's viewpoint.
- to follow through (verb): to do what needs to be done to complete something e.g. A manager should be explicit with expectations and plans and follow through with actions.
- compensation (noun): the combination of money and other benefits that an employee receives for doing their job e.g. A good manager is known to individually consider each employee and try to match their talents and interests with their tasks and compensation.
- to distribute (verb): to share things among a group of people, especially in a planned way e.g. Putting the puzzle together efficiently involves distributing tasks and coming up with strategies.
- to hesitate (verb): to pause before saying something because you are nervous or not sure e.g. You ought to be able to communicate your ideas in a confident way without hesitating.

Learning Points

Report Verbs with Impersonal Passive Constructions

When you want to avoid saying the generalized agent (they, people, everybody etc.) of an action, you can use report verbs such as say, believe, think, claim, mention, request, and point out with a passive structure.

This structure is called the impersonal passive.
Take a look at the following examples.

Active voice:

They say women are stronger than men.

In this case, you can avoid saying who thinks or says something by changing the subject (they) to it and the reporting verb (say) to the passive.

The sentence would be:

It is said that women are stronger than men.

What happens when the second verb (are in this case) is presented in a different tense?

The answer is that the tense does not change in the impersonal passive.

Look at the examples in the chart below:

Active voice	Impersonal passive
Everybody knows that my mother likes red wine.	It is known that my mother likes red wine.
People claim that money was the most important thing in that time.	It is claimed that money was the most important thing in that time.
Experts believe that medicine has improved over the years.	It is believed that medicine has improved over the years.
They think that he will arrive soon.	It is thought that he will arrive soon.
People presume that the president of the company is having a meeting in London.	It is presumed that the president of the company is having a meeting in London.

Examples:

- It is said that effective communication skills are at the root of excellent management.
- A good manager is known to individually consider each employee and try to match their talents and interests with their tasks and compensation.
- It is assumed that employees, tasks and goals are the puzzle pieces.
- It is understood that being a good manager and incorporating all six of the skills requires a lot of hard work and dedication.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Duty and Advice

We use should and ought to to provide suggestions. There are slight differences when using those modal verbs.

Ought to

We use ought to:

to express that something is the desired or ideal thing to do, especially when there is some moral reason to do so.

Example: You ought to admit that you plagiarized the article.

to predict that something is expected under normal conditions.

Example: The letter ought to arrive tomorrow morning.

to offer or ask recommendations.

Example: If you haven't studied the topic, you ought to start now.

Should

We use should:

to express that something is the right thing to do because it is a duty.

Example: All students should be provided with a proper desk.

to give or ask suggestions.

Example: You should see a doctor. You don't look okay.

to predict that something will happen under normal conditions.

Example: By next month, I should have visited many places.

The form of these structures is:

subject + should/ought to + verb

Examples:

- As a manager, your communication style ought to be consistent, clear and tactful.
- You should use the appropriate words to communicate your ideas, requests and concerns.
- They ought to be able to interact with others in an informal but professional manner.
- A manager should be explicit with expectations and plans and follow through with actions.

