

Instructor: ..... Date: .....

Learner: ..... Regional Branch: .....

Program: ..... Center: .....

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Which roles deal with people skills?

Learning Outcome

Express duty, advice, willingness, or intention to do something in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What skills does a people-oriented person have?
- Are you a people-oriented person? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can discuss reasons and results of an event or action related to work and jobs.
- I can talk or report about things, actions, events, or people in a work environment.
- I can talk about team roles.

Let's Explore!

Which role seems to be manipulative*? Which role comes off as being unassertive****?

* "Manipulative" means clever at controlling or deceiving people to get what you want.

** "Unassertive" means not behaving in a confident way.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

People-Oriented Roles

- Coordinators are traditional team leaders in that they lead the team to what they understand to be its goals and objectives. They are excellent listeners for they are able to understand each team member's value. They are calm, good-natured and are often good delegators. They may be manipulative at times insofar as they may delegate too much, greatly reducing their personal responsibility.
- Resource investigators can be described as stable, dominant and extroverted. It's noticed that they are often extremely likable upon first meeting. Their responses tend to be positive and passionate, inasmuch as they are prone to dismiss ideas as quickly as they bring them up. They are the member of the team who brings information from the outside world as they understand the importance of using new ideas. As team members, they like pressure situations and are good improvisers. However, they have a tendency to relax a little too much once the pressure is off.
- Team workers can be described as stable, social and low dominance. The team worker is the individual who is most conscious of the needs and concerns of the other team members. They are the most social and communicative members of the team inasmuch as they know a great deal about the personal lives of their fellow team members. Team workers are often popular and humble. They are the rock of the team. If another team member introduces an idea, team workers tend to try to add-on to the idea, rather than demolishing it. They try to help everyone and believe that others should do the same. They don't like personal confrontation insofar as they often try to evade personal disputes whenever possible. Yet, to some, their non-competitiveness and dislike for conflict may make them seem weak.

Let's Practice!

Describing groups within the team!

Instructions: Read the clues to correctly complete the crossword.

Down

1. They are calm, g_____d and show that they can delegate tasks very effectively.
2. Resource investigators can be described as s_____e, dominant and extroverted.
4. Within the team, they are good i_____s in that they work well under pressure.
5. Team workers can be described as stable, extroverted and low in d_____e.

Across

3. They are p_____e to put things down as quickly as they take them up.
6. If someone produces an idea, their instinct is to build upon it, rather than d_____h it.
7. However, their u_____s and dislike of confrontation may make them seem a bit soft and indecisive.

Let's Practice!

The components of a team!

Instructions: Match the beginning of the sentences in Column A to their corresponding ending in Column B.

COLUMN A

1. They are calm, good-natured and
2. It's noticed that they are
3. They also help and
4. I suggested
5. She explained that

COLUMN B

- a. show that they can delegate tasks very effectively.
- b. a good manager makes all the difference to a team.
- c. feel that others should do the same.
- d. the most immediately likable member of the team.
- e. she rewarded her team for their effort.

Extension Activity

Which people-oriented roles do you fit into?

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Work with a partner.
- Develop a survey to identify the characteristics of a people-oriented person.
- Make 3 questions for each of the three roles: coordinator, team-worker, resource investigator.
- Interview your classmates and take notes of their responses.
- Next, tabulate your results with a partner.
- Explain the different characteristics of each people-oriented role.
- Reveal your findings to the class based on your classmates' answers.
- Also, reveal which category you would belong to and explain why.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I collaborate with a partner.

☐ ☐

I develop a survey to help identify people-oriented roles for my classmates.

☐ ☐

I create questions to interview my classmates with.

☐ ☐

I tabulate our results and reveal them.

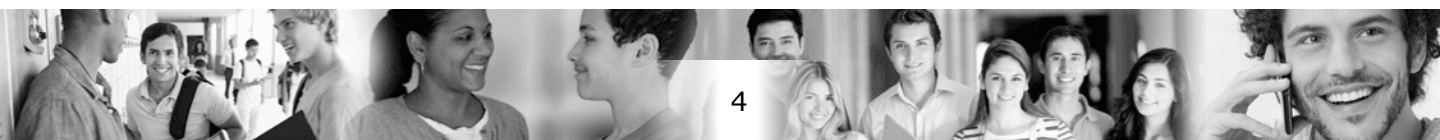

☐ ☐

I reveal which category I belong to and explain why.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- good-natured (adjective): pleasant; friendly
e.g. They are calm, good-natured and are often good delegators.
- confrontation (noun): an animated clash or disagreement
e.g. They dislike confrontation.
- stable (adjective): sensible; reasonable; dependable
e.g. Resource investigators can be described as stable, dominant and extroverted.
- prone (adjective): likely to do something e.g. They are prone to dismiss ideas as quickly as they bring them up.
- improviser (noun): someone who can do something without any preparation e.g. They like pressure situations and are good improvisers.
- personal responsibility (noun): the idea that people cause an event or situation to happen by their own actions
e.g. They may delegate too much, greatly reducing their personal responsibility.
- to demolish (verb): to prove that an idea is completely wrong
e.g. If someone produces an idea, their instinct is to build upon it, rather than demolish it.
- dominance (noun): the idea of being more powerful, more important, or more noticeable than other people e.g. Team workers can be described as stable, extroverted and low in dominance.
- uncompetitiveness (noun): the ability to not compete successfully e.g. Yet, to some, their uncompetitiveness and dislike for conflict may make them seem weak.

Learning Points

Reason Clauses Using in that, insofar as, inasmuch as, for

When you want to provide a reason of why something happens, you can use reason clauses beginning with: in that, insofar as and inasmuch as.

You use in that, insofar as and inasmuch as to justify what you have just said by indicating that the statement is true. You use these words in fairly formal English.

Examples:

He's quite difficult to work with, in that he is always complaining about the job.

In this case, in that means "because".

We are expecting a busy week insofar as all the appointments have been booked.

In this case, insofar as means "as far as".

The product is guaranteed inasmuch as we will replace it within thirty days if there are any problems.

In this case, inasmuch as means "considering that".

For

You use for as a word that may replace "seeing that", "since" or "because". You use for in very formal or literary contexts only.

Example:

I was very nervous for it was my first day.

Examples:

- Coordinators are traditional team leaders in that they lead the team to what they understand to be the team's goals and objectives.
- Team workers don't like personal confrontation insofar as they often try to evade personal disputes whenever possible.
- They are the most social and communicative members of the team inasmuch as they know a great deal about the personal lives of their fellow team members.
- They are excellent listeners for they are able to understand each team member's value.

Learning Points

Report Verbs With That-Clauses

You use that-clauses to talk about facts or beliefs. They are common after report verbs and related nouns.

For example:

*She explained that the insurance policy was about to change.

*Her explanation was that the insurance policy was about to change.

After some report verbs, you use the subjunctive (infinitive without to) in the that-clause.

For example:

I suggested that she remove any reference to the scandal in the lessons.

Examples:

- It's noticed that they are often extremely likeable upon first meeting the team.
- They try to help and feel that others should do the same.
- She explained that a good manager makes all the difference to a team.

